Decrease in N. Y. Elevated Traffic.

NEW YORK, September 7.—The elevated and subway transportation lines of New York city during the year ending June 30 carried 647,378,266 passengers. This number is a decrease of four and a half million compared with the previous year. The subway carried 5,172,646 passengers more than last year, but there was a falling off on the elevated lines of 9,681,051. The decrease on the elevated lines is attributed to general business depression and to a falling off in foreign travel.
